WNTC

One of the most popular features of the Clark and Phoenix State campuses is the campus radio station WNTC. Since its founding in November 1947 by twenty-two students, the organization has grown to over one hundred active members.

Using a carrier transmitter, the station presented its first program in March of 1948. From its first studio in the attic of the Presidents' Building, it was moved into a group of studios in the barn behind the Crane Building and from there to its present location on the third floor over the South Hall gym.

The facilities are ever growing and along with this growth comes the extended benefits offered to members. Amateur disk jockeys, sports and regular announcers, salesmen, engineers and operators, along with many others, are given a chance to show and develop their abilities and learn new skills.

In growing from a small organization, with but a meager staff, to the now large, completely active and well running staff, WNTC has truly taken its place as one of the most rewarding student activities in the "Twin Colleges."
